An Evening Concert in the Music Theater

CASTLE HILL

at Ipswich, Massachusetts, under the auspices of the Castle Hill Foundation (a non-profit corporation), offers unique and private facilities for conferences, meetings, and outings of professional and business organizations, and for reunions of instructional and student groups.

At Castle Hill are 350 acres of beautiful high lawns, terraces and woodland, with far-reaching views over ocean, shore and country, - - over the great Rowley Marshes and Plum Island north to Mount Agamenticus and the Isles of Shoals, over the famous Ipswich Beach to Cape Ann's rocks and moors, over the huge marshes of the Essex River to the wooded hills of Gloucester and Manchester.

At the highest point, dominating an allée which stretches a quarter mile to the sea, stands the Great House, a Queen Anne mansion of spacious rooms decorated with old portraits, Grinling Gibbons carving, and original paneling from Hogarth's London house. There are comfortable sleeping accommodations for as many as thirty persons.

At the foot of the first lawn is the Casino, a single big room with a fine polished-wood floor and a huge open fireplace, much used for meetings, teas and dances. Opposite, across a terrace, stand the Bachelor Apartments, with central foyer, four bedrooms and adjoining baths, convenient for changing into swim-suits.

Close by, to the west of the House, is the lovely Italian Garden, with concert stage and seating accommodations for 1200, and the recently restored Rose Garden.

Adjoining Castle Hill is Ipswich Beach, also part of the Richard T. Crane, Jr., Memorial Reservation of The Trustees of Reservations, with its three miles of fine white sand and its unparalleled sea bathing. Behind the Beach lie a thousand acres of unspoiled dune lands sprinkled with large patches of pine woods. A herd of some fifty deer roams over the entire property.

The facilities at Castle Hill enable our staff to provide shore and other types of luncheons, dinners, and buffet meals for as many as 1000 people at a time.

Inquiries as to facilities, dates, and prices should be directed to Col. J. Perry Smith, Business Manager, Castle Hill Foundation, Ipswich, Massachusetts.

The Castle Hill Foundation, in both its administration and its economy, operates independently of The Trustees of Reservations. The Trustees, who own Castle Hill as part of the Richard T. Crane, Jr., Memorial Reservation, have made possible the activities of the Foundation, by extending to it the use of the Great House, the Casino Area, and the adjoining grounds, without lease or payment of any kind.

View from Picnic Lawn across Ipswich Beach and Bay to Annisquam and Cape Ann.
